Another gunman was reportedly firing indiscriminately around the room. Deccan Mujahedeen, a previously unknown group, claimed responsibility for the attack. The claim has not been confirmed. Officials suspected Pakistan's Lashkar-e-Tayyaba (LeT) were responsible for the attack, although a spokesman for the LeT denied its involvement. Ajmal Kasab, an assailant captured on 11/26/2008, told authorities that the attack was a plan devised six months prior that hoped to kill 5,000 people, targeting whites who were preferably Americans	attacks/index.html; or British. According to Kasab, the assailants posed as students during a visit to Mumbai during the previous month to familiarize themselves with the city's roads and to film the "strike locations". Kasab confessed to being a member of Lashkar-e-Tayyaba (LeT), belonging to the LeT's Fidayeen (suicide squad). He also identified the masterminds of the attack, who were detained after a raid on an LeT camp on 12/07/2008 and formally indicted on 05/12/2009 for their involvement in the attacks. In May 2010, Kasab was convicted and sentenced to death for his role in the attacks.

GTD	Norway	Utoya	July 22, 2011	67	33	Anders Behring Breivik (Right-wing extremists)	Terrorism	On Friday afternoon, in Hole, Buskerud County, Norway, in one of two related attacks, a man identified as Anders Breivik and dressed as a police officer, rode a ferry from the city to the island of Utoya, which is the location of a youth camp that is run by Norway's ruling Labor Party. He told the ferry driver that he needed to go to the island and check that everything was secure because of the bombing that just took place in the city. Once on the island, Breivik identified himself as a police officer and then opened fire on the camp attendees with his semi-automatic, 5.56 caliber Ruger Mini-14 rifle and a 9 millimeter Glock pistol. Due to the camp's location on the remote island, Breivik was able to kill 69 people and injure at least 60 others, including teenagers, before the police could reach the scene. The attack caused an unknown amount of property damage to the camp. Once the police arrived Breivik surrendered without a fight and was taken into custody. Breivik confessed to the attacks and in August 2012 he was sentenced to 21 years in prison.
